

Together – We keep rolling

Keeping vehicles moving has never been more important than now. And at SKF that's what we do, even in this challenging time.

The ambulances rushing to help; the trucks keeping medical supplies and food coming, and the mechanics who service and repair all of these vehicles: those are the people we are here to support. To help make sure the vehicles that make a difference can stay out on the streets, doing what needs to be done.

We help secure a reliable spare parts supply and we are doing all we can to make sure we continue to do so. If you are experiencing problems getting hold of spare parts, please just let us know and we will do all we can to help.
